Mamma's Hands

HOPE

In Every Individual

PHONE HOME

Each week a group of dedicated volunteers travel together in the Mamma's Hands bus to downtown Seattle, to offer hope to individuals in crisis along with a way off of the streets and back to stability. Homeless men and women are offered the free use of our cell phones to reconnect with their families, along with a meal and warm clothing as available. Over the years Mamma's Hands has reunited grateful men, women, and teens with their families across the country, by helping pay their way home. It's a solution to the homelessness crisis that works!

- Over 1,500 homeless individuals have been reunited with their families

GET INVOLVED!

As a privately funded nonprofit organization, our life-saving work with homeless families and individuals in crisis is only made possible through the generosity of our supporters.

OUR STORY

For more than 31 years, Mamma's Hands has been a beacon of support and hope for the homeless in the greater Western Washington community.

After a meaningful experience with a father and son living on the streets, founders Denny and Leslie Hancock recruited family and friends to help feed the homeless. As the number of those in need grew The Hancock's knew they had to do more, especially for the vulnerable women and children they saw struggling on the streets.

Today, Mamma's Hands serves hundreds of homeless families and individuals annually through our two programs, the House of Hope and Phone Home Programs.

Over the years Mamma's Hands has stayed true to our mission that there is hope in every individual! We are grateful to our ever-expanding network of supporters who make lasting change possible for those we serve.

"I don't know where we would be without the House of Hope. They gave us love and a chance to heal we are now in our forever home because of their support."

Mamma's Hands will always be a very special part of our family."

OUR PROGRAMS

Mamma's Hands provides help, hope, and healing to those experiencing homelessness in our community.

HOUSE OF HOPE

Located on ten acres of wooded land in the Seattle area, mothers and children in crisis are cared for in two beautiful homes that serve up to seven families at a time. Mothers receive resources, advocacy, and support services from a team of professional staff, and children are enrolled in local schools. Case management, job readiness activities, and parenting classes help equip each resident on her journey towards self-sufficiency.

Most families are with us between six to twelve months before entering long-term housing. Upon graduation from the program, families remain connected to a caring network of support through our two-year Aftercare Program. At the House of Hope:

- 90% of families have been impacted by domestic violence
- 100% of families achieve at least 2 goals in the areas of education, employment, and housing
- 98% of families graduate into stable housing and enroll in Aftercare
